Walter Davis

CEO Nevada Health Centers

For the past decade Walter Davis has served as Chief Executive Officer for Nevada Health Centers (NVHC), a nonprofit community health organization. The organization has been in Nevada since 1977. Under his leadership, NVHC has expanded to serve over 50,000 patients each year and Davis leads a team of over 400 healthcare professionals. The organization now has 18 community health centers, three mobile healthcare programs, two residency programs and a presence throughout the state.
Davis is committed to his purpose in the community and has a history of exemplary service in northern Nevada. Prior to joining NVHC, Davis served in leadership roles at large healthcare organizations including Renown Health, Cigna and MedPartners, among others. Improving health equity and community health outcomes for communities across Nevada has been a hallmark of Davis' career. He established the Beverly E. Coleman Nevada Health Foundation to help provide access to quality healthcare in communities across Nevada.
